APPLICATIONS

- EMS
- Search & Rescue
- Environmental Monitoring

COMPACT ADVANCED DUAL IMAGING SYSTEM

Recognize targets from greater standoff distances with the Ultra 7000's dual sensor — high resolution CCD-TV and InSb, Focal Plane Array (FPA) Infrared detector. No one else packs so much performance into such a small system.

COMPACT SIZE

Ideal for use on weight restricted platforms, the Ultra 7000's reduced profile, fully sealed 9 inch gimbal is lightweight, compact and designed to minimize drag. The system's compact size translates into saved fuel, increased mission duration and improved weight and balance calculations.

CONTINUOUS IR ZOOM

The Ultra 7000's continuous zoom optics allow the operator to customize the Field of View as the tactical situation requires — combining the right amount of target magnification with enough scene coverage to maintain situational awareness. With continuous zoom optics, the operator can zoom in or out without losing sight of the target; fixed FOV systems force the operator to lose sight of the target every time the magnification is changed.

No other IR system provides the advantages of continuous zoom optics while used in conjunction with an infrared sensor.

ERGONOMIC CONTROLS

The Ultra 7000 control functions are contained in the ergonomically designed Hand Control Unit (HCU). The HCU is a simple, intuitive and non-fatiguing control device created to help operators even during extended periods of use and intense action.

AUTOMATIC TRACKING SYSTEMS

Embedded in the Ultra 7000's Electronic Control Unit is a state-of-the-art automatic target tracking system. The Autotracker reduces workload and fatigue by keeping the selected scene or target within the field of view without constant operator inputs. Because mission requirements change every moment, the Ultra 7000 gives operators pushbutton access to three distinct modes of target tracking: Centroid — used to track moving targets; Scenelock — for tracking larger stationary scenes; and Correlation — which tracks small, slow-moving, targets
